(In many participating institutions, this program is administered by the academic department concerned. WRGP enrollments are not recorded in any central office. Our report of enrollments is compiled from an annual survey of participating departments.)

OTHER EXCHANGE PROGRAMS

Mineral Engineering Program

Tuition reciprocity was arranged among mineral engineering programs in Alaska, Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, and Wyoming, effective in 1970. Excepting Wyoming, students from throughout the United States were admitted at the resident tuition rate. The program was terminated upon initiation of the Western Undergraduate Exchange in 1988.

Community College Student Exchange Program

Effective in 1971, community colleges in Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming (subsequently joined by North Dakota) admitted residents of other participating states at resident tuition rates were (1) the college had designated the program in which the student enrolled as a "regional program;" or (2) the college in the other state was closer to the student's residence than any community college in the student's home state. The program was terminated upon establishment of the Western Undergraduate Exchange.

WICHE Scholars

This program, begun in 1975, made it possible for any WICHE state to sponsor a resident in any program anywhere in United States not offered in any WICHE exchange program, would pay resident tuition and the home state would pay the receiving institution the additional amount of its non-resident tuition. The program has been used by only one or two states, normally to deal with exceptional cases. No students are enrolled in 2003.
